Dep. Asst Secretary of Defense for Strategic Capabilities, 2005-2009

Brian R. Green was responsible for Pentagon policy for Ballistic Missile defenses, nuclear and strike forces, military space, and information operations during the Bush administration. As the chief negotiator with Poland and the Czech Republic, he was responsible for winning their agreement to host ground-based U.S. ballistic missile interceptors and radar installations, a key capability for defending Europe from nuclear missile launch from Iran that was canceled early in 2009 by President Obama. Brian also worked on the professional staff of the House and Senate Armed Service Committees from 1997-2004.

I am proud to have this endorsement from one of our top national experts on strategic nuclear weapons and ballistic missile defense. I will look forward to consulting with Brian in Congress on strategic issues.
